

To our staff, we say thank you.

We want to thank our staff for their generosity and commitment to donating to charities through regular payroll deductions, including their response to this year's devastating events.

Our organisations are committed to supporting and promoting this form of workplace giving. It has become integral to the way we invest in the community, reflecting the social and environmental issues that matter most to our staff.

Since the introduction of workplace giving to Australia in 2002, we have been inspired by its take up and impact. Its potential is significant.

To our fellow CEOs, please join us in building a culture of giving through a high impact workplace giving program for your staff. The results are worth it.
